The People Will Strike

The limit of profiteering has been reached and the people have called a halt. The Government has failed and here in New Hampshire nothing has been done to prevent it. Plan to attend the primaries and select candidates who are not machine controlled. There are surprises in store according to reports. Money will be spent lavishly by men eager to reach the high places.

PONZI HAS PAID OUT OVER MILLION DOLLARS THIS WEEK

Boston Money Making Wizard Says He Has Cash Enough on Hand to Satisfy All Demands

(By Associated Press)

Boston, July 30.—Charles Ponzi, the new style financier who claims to have a masked million, and who has paid the public large profits on their investments in his dealings in international exchange today appeared to have almost satisfied questions upon his investors as to his solvency. It was a short line which formed before the pavement window of the Ponzi offices this morning and when disbursement was resumed, clerks said they were being offered as many notes maturing for the 50 per cent profit in 45 days as they were returning to investors the principal for interest on notes surrendered short of maturity. The virtual end of the five day run was in sight with few additions to the disappearing line. The amount paid out by Ponzi since the line began on Monday was estimated by his manager today at $1,500,000 "and we have twice as much money right here in Boston as Mr. Ponzi owed. So far there is no need of any one being nervous," the manager added. Ponzi's manager said that no investigators had been seen as yet although federal, state and county inquiries are under way. Their books, the manager said, were open for inspection by any one in authority and would show that Mr. Ponzi had more than enough money to satisfy all claims. The statements of Postmaster Patten of New York that there were not enough international postal coupons in the world to build up the operations which Ponzi claimed as is, the manager declared that Ponzi's manner of "cashing in" on his operations was a business secret which he intended keeping and which examination of his books would not reveal. "We have the money. There has been no violation of the law. The public has received and will receive dollar for dollar on every promise. Let the investigations come. What can they do?" the manager explained.

The United States Attorney announced later that a firm of auditors had begun work on Ponzi's books in behalf of the federal authorities. The entire staff of the firm would be employed, he said, in order to complete the work quickly.

HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE WITNESS ANNIVERSARY PAGEANT IN KITTERY

Kittery's observation of the state's tercentennial was held on Thursday at Kittery Point on the grounds of the old Sparhawk estate, now the residence of Hon. Horace Mitchell It was in every way a great success and the pageant was witnessed and appreciated by upwards of 2500 people.

In connection with the celebration the Pepperrell Association held their annual reunion and the Piscataqua Pioneers, another historical society, held their annual meeting at the Hotel Champernowne.

The Pageant was the real feature of the afternoon and this was in a series of pictures representing the principal historical facts. The parts were taken by people of that section and the costumes were all of historic value, many of them priceless heirlooms brought out for this occasion.

The pictures were all in bulletin form and they were all taken by the moving picture company, who is making a complete picture of the various celebrations through the state.

The first scene was a presentation of the party assembled to witness the wedding of Andrew Pepperrell, son of Sir William, and Hannah Waldo, which was interrupted and dispersed by Miss Waldo suddenly jilting the younger Pepperrell.

The departure of the troops under Sir William Pepperrell for Louisburg was not given as many of the properties to be used did not arrive and this will be given on Saturday.

Hon. Edward F. Gowell of Berwick, a member of Gov. Milliken's council, represented Sir William Pepperrell, Mrs. Horace Mitchell appeared as Lady Pepperrell, Gen. Waldo was taken by Chaplain Allison J. Hayes, U. S. N., Rev. Samuel Moody by Elmer J. Burnham, Andrews Pepperrell by Raymond A. McCabe, Thomas Fluker by Leslie Peaslee, and Hannah Waldo by Miss Mildred Gerry.

A minuet dance by twenty-four young people was one of the striking features of the afternoon. They were directed by Mrs. Helen Dunbar Wood, and it was remarkably well done. They were all in costume.

The arrangements for the affair were in charge of Mr. Alexander Dennett as chairman of the committee, who has been devoting a great deal of time to the arrangements. He had the able assistance of Judge Justin H. Shaw, always valuable in work of historic interest, Mrs. Mabel A. Burnham, Miss A. Lillian Walker, Mrs. Oscar T.

Mrs. Inez Littlefield of Beverly, Mass., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pierce of North Kittery.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Norton of Rochester visited relatives at North Kittery on their way to their camp in York yesterday.

The taking of the Centennial Pictures, yesterday was greatly handicapped by some of the equipment being delayed in arriving here. They went ahead with their work doing the best they could under the circumstances. Those taking part deserve a great deal of praise for the good work done and the interest taken, especially the principals in the scenes, which, owing to existing circumstances, had to be filmed without previous rehearsals. Hon. E. F. Gewell of Berwick who impersonated Sir William Pepperrell, was very pleasing, and it is said that his resemblance to Sir William is most remarkable; Mrs. Horace Mitchell as Lady Pepperrell, portrayed this character in a very fine and impressing manner; Miss Mildred A. Gerry, as Hannah Waldo, the bride, around whom all interest in the several scenes was centered, was very attractive, and carried out this personality in a most creditable manner; also the part of Andrew Pepperrell, son of Sir William, and taken by Raymond McCabe, was exceptionally well taken; the other three characters, Gen. Waldo, father of Miss Hannah, and impersonated by Chaplain A. J. Hayes, Parson Moody, represented by Elmer J. Barnham, and Thomas Fluker, taken by Leslie Peaslee, all deserve much credit for their part in the scenes. Owing to a shortage of film the Minuet Dance, which was a very pretty thing, had to be cut short. This dance had had rehearsals for four weeks and was very prettily performed, and much praise is due those taking part in it, and to Miss Helen Dunbar Wood, who had charge of it.

The local committee worked hard each and every one, and to them, and to those taking part Kittery extends its thanks.

The costumes were very pretty, and among the "Guests" at the wedding were noted some very old time costumes.

Only the one picture was filmed yesterday. It is reported that The Leaving of the Troops, will be filmed tomorrow.

BAZAAR WILL NET OVER $1700.

The bazaar given at the Woman's Building on Middle street for the benefit of old St. John's Church proved a success far above expectations. When the again was planned it was hoped to clear a thousand dollars, but it was so ably managed and both contributors to the tables and patrons were so generous that it is expected over $1700 will be cleared from the bazaar and the opening to visitors of the church and the ancient Warner Mansion on that afternoon.

The proceeds will be used to repair the historic church and to install a new heating plant. The slate roof is in need of repairs for the first time in a century.

LAWN PARTY GIVEN BY SUNDAY SCHOOL

The lawn party and social given by the Booker T. Washington Sunday School class of the People's Baptist church last evening at the residence of Clarence W. Tilley on Dennett street, was attended by a large throng. The lawn was handsomely decorated with flags and bunting in the National colors and Japanese lanterns. A fine program was rendered and gave added interest to the occasion. The various sales tables were presided over by the young ladies and ice cream, assorted cake, lemonade, watermelon and hot dogs were offered, many tables being sold out long before the evening had passed. The whole affair was a grand success and the teacher and his committee deserve much credit for the skillful manner in which it was conducted.

It will pay to watch some of Portsmouth's young base ball players. They will be with the big ones some day.

HEAVY TAXES CLOSE THEATRES IN GERMANY

Berlin.—Taxation amounting to something like 55 percent of gross revenue and heavy running expenses are responsible for the recent closing down of 60 first-class theatres in Germany. Many theatrical and operatic companies are said to be in sore financial straits. Few can afford to pay for the higher priced seats at the present increased rates, and the moving picture houses, with their popular prices, are reaping the benefit.

The manager of the Reinhardt, concern which controls the three most important Berlin theatres states that the latest "luxury" tax alone takes more than 20 percent of the box office receipts. Boxes and stalls are now rarely booked. The Kapp revolution week, he said, caused the concern a loss of 750,000 marks.

Director Barnowsky of the Lessing Theatre, the home of the drama in Berlin, told a Tageblatt representative that the German stage is passing through a most critical period. Theatrical budgets, he said, can no longer be balanced. The greatest menace, he said, was "Americanism" by which,he explained, he meant "art for amusement's sake, not for art's sake."

STATE FORESTER COMMENTS ON TIMBER SHORTAGE AND FOREST FIRE PROTECTION.

The United States Senate recently published as Senate document 311 an exhaustive report prepared by the National Forest Service on the subject of Timber Depletion, Lumber Prices, Lumber Export and Concentration of Timber Ownership. The demand for information contained in this report has come about as a result of a general feeling of uneasiness throughout the country and of great anxiety on the part of wood using industries concerning the diminishing supply of forest resources, including news print paper, and the present high cost of these materials.

The report is startling in its conclusions. It shows that out of 822 million acres of original forest area in the United States 137 million acres, or less than 20 per cent, now remains in virgin timber and the greater part of this lies west of the Rocky Mountains. The report further shows that we are cutting our forests four times faster than they are growing; that there are in the United States 336 million acres of cut over forest land bearing no sawable timber; that 81 million acres of it —an area equal to the combined forest area of Europe—are utterly barren, devastated by fire or cutting and are producing nothing of value; and the remaining 255 million acres are reduced in timber growth due to fire and other causes until their growing power is only a fraction of what might be obtained under proper management and control. The timber shortage is becoming so acute that lumber manufacturers and various associations, paper companies and wood sawing industries are themselves making exhaustive studies of conditions, struggling to work out policies to safeguard the future of their industries and are holding conferences which will bring all wood users together to discuss the alarming situation which confronts the country. The greatest conference of wood using industries probably ever held in this country is now taking place in Madison, Wisconsin for this purpose and the presence of all interested representatives of land owners and wood using industries is expected.

From ten to twenty years ago foresters called the attention of the nation to the approaching shortage of forest material. It was difficult to convince people, the owners and operators as well as the general public, that a shortage would take place. What was then known to forest economists has now become the conviction of those who use wood and understand the present conditions. The drain upon forests during the war has of course hastened the time of actual shortage.

New Hampshire is a natural forest region and the importance of the forests is very great on account of the many industries depending on them for wood and on the streams for water power and because of the recreational value which our forests give to the state. New Hampshire was among the first states to realize the importance of forest fire protection as a means of preserving the future productivity of her forests. Our present State Forestry organization has been in operation for 11 years. During this period we have seen the last strongholds of virgin timber attacked and largely cut away and literally thousands of second growth woodlots cut for lumber, thus greatly increasing the fire danger. Measures to prevent and combat forest fires have so far been successful, however, in the absence of many extraordinary periods of drought, that we can now find thousands of acres in the majority of towns in this state reforesting to valuable young growth which will be available in the years to come to take the place of timber now being cut.

In the opinion of the State Forester we are in a position to say to the country that New Hampshire is taking steps to protect its future forest resources. The results are already showing in the wealth of young pine and spruce growing throughout the state and which has been made possible by the decrease in the number of forest fires during the last few years.

The government estimates the annual cut in New England to be three and one-half times the annual growth and predicts that the present output will fall off one half in the next ten years. Our New Hampshire forests should be able to supply our local needs without interruption for all time to come, but this will not be possible until the wasteful destruction of immature trees during logging operations is stopped, until the slash left on cut over lands ceases to be a constant menace from fire, and until we have brought back to valuable growth thousands of acres now producing nothing of value. An abnormally dry season would bring fire dangers which the organization for an ordinary year can not take care of.

There is much new work yet to be done, additional legislation and increased funds are necessary if we are to continue the lines of effort now underway. We need the cooperation of the people of every town, and the visitors from outside, to help prevent fires, willingness to serve the town and state in a spirit of public interest, willingness to conform to the forest laws of the state, and to bear the public expenditures necessary to maintain and improve the program we have undertaken to carry out.

POSTOFFICE OFFICIALS DO NOT CREDIT PONZI'S CLAIMS

Washington, July 29.—Postoffice Department officials declare it would have been impossible for Charles Ponzi to reap millions of dollars out of international reply coupons, as he claims. They point out that the amount of coupons handled has been too small.

The international reply coupon was established in 1908. Since then the total of coupons sold in foreign countries and sent to the United States for reply postage amounted to but $60,000. This country has drawn since that time $2,500,000 coupons from Berne, Switzerland, where they are issued. At six cents each, the price involved was $150,000. The Postoffice Department now has about 900,000 coupons in stock.

The international reply coupon works this way: A person desiring to send reply postage to another in a foreign country would buy one of the coupons and inclose it in the letter. The coupon would be handed into the foreign Postoffice and exchanged for a stamp of that country—not money. This stamp would be used for the reply to the United States.

How Ponzi or any one else could reap a fortune out of such practice, considering the small amount of coupons handled, is puzzling to the postal officials here. They do not believe it was done. They think Ponzi must have meant something else.

Inspectors of the Postoffice Department have been on the case for a month and have not discovered anything on which to make an arrest.

Mrs. John F. Leary and daughter Miss Eleanor of Highland street have returned from a visit to Milton, Mass.

NEW WAY TO STEAL RINGS

Thief Poses as Tailor Before Victims.

New York, July 30.—Eddy Coch, 24 years old, known to the police as "Dr. Franklin," and also as "The Measurer" was arrested last Wednesday night and locked up on a charge of grand larceny.

Mrs. Anna A. Schare of 2246 West Twenty-eighth street, Coney Island, said that last Tuesday evening Coch called at her house and told her that her husband was going to make her a present of a new gown, and that he had been sent to measure her for it. He advised her to take off her jewelry,she said, saying it might tear the clothing. So she removed her diamond engagement ring, valued at $1000 and went into the next room to prepare to be measured.

Coch is alleged to have seized the ring and fled. At police headquarters 12 other persons identified Coch with similar thefts it is said.

DOVER

Dover, July 29.—During the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Goodwin from their home, 49 Prospect street, this forenoon, their residence was burglarized and articles to the value of more than $100 were stolen. Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin were away from home for a short time and were returning home at about 10.30 o'clock when they saw a man going away from the house. He went down through the field and when he saw Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin going into the house he started to run through the field toward the railroad track.

The action of the stranger aroused the suspicions of Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin and they quickly entered their home to find that it had been burglarized during their absence. They notified the police. The break was made by raising the screen in the window on the veranda, through which the burglar made his entrance.

The Central of Georgia Railway Company was loaned $515,000 for the purchase of additional equipment, and the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railway Company was extended a credit of $200,000 to aid in meeting a maturity of $175,000 which was due July 15.

SOMERVILLE YOUTH DROWNS IN POND

North Rochester, N. H., July 30.—Arnold Lewis, 13 years old, son of Mrs Catherine Christian of 33 Flint street, Somerville, Mass., was drowned yesterday in Spaulding's Pond while bathing.

He and a companion dived from a dam into 40 feet of water and when the former rose to the surface he found his friend sinking with uplifted hands. He was unsuccessful in his attempt to save him.

The accident happened on the Maine side of the river, and Deputy Sheriff Henry Chamberlain of West Lebanon, Me., procured a boat from a neighboring pond, and with others grappled for the body. It has not yet been found.

Lewis was employed by J. R. Clayton & Bros. of Somerville, and was engaged with them in hauling lumber by truck from the Simon Wentworth lot to Rochester last Sunday.

GOOD BOOK STO READ ON DESERT ISLAND

Hall Caine Selects Ten Works, Beginning With the Bible, and Gives Reasons for Choice

(From the Cleveland Plain Dealer)

(What ten books would you select for a course of reading if you were placed on a desert island? No time should be lost in compiling the list because there are only a few desert islands left.

Here, for example, not of Islands, but of Books, is the list selected by William Caine, the novelist, author of "But She Meant Well:"

"1. The Bible, because it is a book that I have always meant to read.

"2. Gibbon, because there is such a lot of it.

"3. Rabelais, that I might laugh.

"4. 'Don Quixote,' that I might weep.

"5. 'Bouvard et Pecuchet,' because this is one side of France.

"6. Carlyle's 'French Revolution,' because this is the other.

"7. 'Walchelt und Dichtung,' because here I might have Germany.

"8. 'Arabian Nights,' because this is the East.

"9. 'Tom Jones,' because this is England as Fielding saw it.

"10. 'The New Foresters,' because this is England as my wife saw it."

AUTHORS' ODD POSITIONS

Reade, Collins and Hugo Wrote Best While Standing at Desk

(From the London Chronicle.)

It has not always been business that caused famous writers to do their work in bed. Most authors have a peculiar position in which they find inspiration flow most easily.

Charles eReade and Wilkie Collins worked best when standing, and Victor Hugo wrote practically the whole of "Les Miserables" standing at a high desk.

Walt Whitman's favorite position was lying full length on a pile of lumber, while Byron composed many of his best verses on horseback.

In a police court in Brooklyn, N. Y., this week a woman wanted a divorce because her husband kissed her 300 times a day. The men who heard the case said they did not blame the husband. A pretty little woman is Mrs. Staddort.

Read her speech to the court and the court's answer and judge for yourselves. She is 32 years old:

"Your honor," she said to Magistrate O'Neill, "he was killing me with kisses and love. He kissed me on the street, in church, at home. I counted 300 kisses, last Monday, and the good Lord only knows how many on Sunday. He kissed me until I felt I was dying from his kisses, and then he wanted me to smile."

"A strange world," soliloquized the court. "Most women protest because their husbands do not kiss them enough."

SPIRITUALISM HITS GERMANY

Bucharest.—A wave of spiritualistic seances is sweeping over Rumania and some of the mediums claim to have received extraordinary "messages." One reported that an attempt to communicate with the spirit of Julius Caesar had failed because he was "commanding and governing in Mars and therefore out of reach."

WOMEN CAUGHT IN POKER RAID

Judge Finds They Were Spending Husbands' Cash.

New York, July 30.—"I pity the poor hard working husband who comes home at night and finds his supper uncooked, his wife away playing poker and his hard earned money spent over a gambling table."

The speaker was Magistrate Raphae Tobias, in Washington Heights Court before him was Mrs. Florence Schlesinger, 540 West 143d street, in whose apartment detectives yesterday afternoon found a dozen women engaged in an ardent search for a royal flush.

Detectives Foley and Donnelly, testifying at the trial of Mrs. Schlesinger on a charge of keeping a gambling house, said they found the table covered with chips and that the women told them the value of the chips was, red, a dollar; white, a half dollar, and blue, a dime. The detectives said the women told them they bought the chips from Mrs. Schlesinger in $20 lots, they paying her $20 but receiving $18 in chips. The $2 went to the "Kitty." Mrs. Schlesinger said the $2 was used to provide eats. The magistrate decided to hold her in $500 bail for trial in General Session.

"I have no objection," he said, "to the social features of card games. It's a nice way to pass an afternoon or an evening—in a friendly game. But it appears that this was a business proposition; that an income was derived from this game. This sort of thing works a hardship on the husband.Because his wife is foolish and throws his money away, he gets discouraged and down-hearted and loses interest in life."

PROGRAM COMPLETED FOR AUGUST MEETING

Hedding, July 30.—Announcement has been made by Rev. T. Ross Hicks, superintendent of Dover district, and president of the Hedding Camp Meeting association, that one of the strongest camp meeting programs in recent years will be presented at the annual camp meeting Aug. 22 to 29.

Dr. Charles L. Goodell of New York city, executive secretary of the commission on evangelism of the federated council of the churches of Christ in America will be the chief speaker as the evangelist for the week, and Ernest W. Naftzger, world famous Gospel singer and music leader will conduct the music.

Other attractive features will be a course in Bible study given by William B. Oliver of New York, editor of "Daily Bible;" a church institute at which subjects of religious education stewardship and the rural church will be discussed by such leaders as Prof. W. S. Athearn of Boston university, and Dr. L. H. Lovejoy of Boston, and a course in evangelism by Dr. Goodell.

Rev. Roger Guptil of Africa will lead the sunset services at Vincent rock; Rev. H. W. Hook of Haverhill, Mass., will conduct the Pentecostal services, and the boys' camp and the girls' camp will be conducted as in recent years.

Every day will have a special emphasis, unday, the opening day will be "Missionary Day," with Rev. A. F. Reimer of Boston and Rev. Roger Guptil of Africa as speakers. Monday will be "Women's Day;" Tuesday, "Rural Church Day;" Wednesday, "Stewardship Day;" Thursday, "Prohibition Day," with an address by Dr. Clarence True Wilson of Washington; Friday will be "Sunday School Day" and Saturday, "Epworth League Day," with a special program under the auspices of the Dover district Epworth league.

Already cottages for the latter part of August are at a premium and it is expected that the management will be obliged to utilize tents to accommodate groups from the various churches who desire to attend the meeting.

MAY LIVE TO SEE WOMAN IN WHITE HOUSE

New York.—The millions of American women who expect their political status to be changed by Federal amendment to citizenship next November are going to become a power for good in the nation according to Mrs. John Sherwin Crosby. A woman president of the United States, is "remote but not impossible, say, in 1941."

"The only two things worth while at present," said Mrs. Crosby, "are politics and religion. We all should study both; how to improve our government and make better men and women. When I speak of religion I don't mean any particular creed but the religion of the Gospels, the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount. The world is money mad. Religion alone will free it from its selfishness and unrest."

Mrs. Crosby, who has been called "the mother of New York women Democrats," a white-haired, dignified matron of more than three score years—she is the widow of a Judge—declared the 300 or more women delegates would go to the convention with the determination to nominate a strong man and put through a "constructive" program.

"It was the greatest convention ever held," she said, "because women for the first time had a voice in it.

"All American women," she continued, "are sufferers from the profiteers. We must fight them and I am sure we have ingenuity enough to devise a way to defeat them and, in other ways, to bring down the cost of living. Inequitable taxation undoubtedly will come in for its share of attention at the San Francisco caucuses and the idea of Henry George of stopping speculation in land and relieving both workers and industry from some of their burdens undoubtedly will be advocated by women. The worst profiteer of all is the profiteer in houses and land. The 'unearned increment' of land, the rental value, must be taken by public revenue or the people will stagger under their taxes till they drop."

The woman leader declared that "with the change in the political status of women next fall" there would come, however, no violent change in governmental affairs. It would take women a long time to become practical politicians, she said, but they would become such eventually. She said the time would come when women would fill the most important offices within the gift of the people, even to a woman president of the United States, Supreme Court Justices and members of Congress.

HISTORIC TREES STILL STAND IN MASSACHUSETTS

Boston.—The part that trees play in the history of a state is shown by an index table of historic trees now standing in Massachusetts. The table, which was prepared for the New England Historic Genealogical Society, shows the association of trees with historic events extending through important periods since the days of the Pilgrim fathers.

The most famous is the Washington Elm in Cambridge, under which General Washington took command of the little force of patriots that was called the American Army. It has been said that the troops could almost be sheltered under the elm's 95 foot spread of branches.

Other trees mark revolutionary incidents and events, with local, state or national significance, as the places where Washington rested, or made an address; or watered his horses; where Lafayette stopped during his campaign in the patriot cause; where revolutionists had their rendezvous; where the Minute Men trained or took stand in actions against the British.

The Boxford Elm, a revolutionary meeting-place, was the scene also of the signing of an important treaty in the days of the Indian Wars, and under the Eliot Oak at South Natick, John Eliot spread his gospel to the Indians. Famous speeches on abolition by the orators of the time were made among the trees at Island Grove in North Abington from 1846 through the Civil War.

A buttonwood tree at Charlemont, with a spread of 85 feet, is preserved as the place where the first settlers found shelter while they slept, and the Sheffield Elm was the camping place if the founder of that town, and the scene of the town meetings, long after wards. The Paxton Elm marks the center of the state.

The Oakham Oak gave that town its name and was a model for its own seal, and the Avery Oak at Dedham, also the model for the town seal, served as the site of the town's first religious meeting.

The oldest tree in the index is the Endicott Pear Tree at Danvers port, planted by John Endicott in 1630. The greatest is the Rugg Elm at Framingham, with a spread of 145 feet. The famous "Great Elm" of Boston's earliest days is no more, but an off-shoot is recognized as Old Elm's Descendant. The Ancient Oaks, made famous in Longfellow's "Tales of a Wayside Inn" Hawthorne's Grove at Concord, favorite walk of the author, Louisa May Alcott's Elms also at Concord, and Oliver Wendell Holmes' Pine at Pittsfield all are treasured for their associations with those who named them.

Must Keep Out of Politics.

Because of political activity on the part of some men holding positions under the civil service, and the understanding that this sort of thing was liable to become general, warning has been issued to all civil service employes that they must refrain from active work in politics or run the risk of losing their positions. There are about 300,000 such employes scattered through the country and about 100,000 in the national capital, and it lately came to the ears of the Civil Service Commission that many of these men werep lanning to take an active part in the coming national campaign. Hence the warning that has been issued.

It is highly proper that holders of civil service positions should not take an active part in politics. Their positions are non-political. They were not obtained through politics and cannot be taken away from them through politics. Their positions are secure as long as their work is properly performed, and they ought to be satisfied to keep out of politics. They are denied no personal rights. They can vote as they please and express their opinions as freely as they please in private conversation, but they are not at liberty to electioneer in any manner and have received timely warning that if they attempt this they will do so at their peril.

The rule prohibiting political work on the part of civil service employes reads as follows: "No person in the executive civil service shall use his official authority and influence for the purpose of interfering with an election or affecting the results thereof. Persons who by the provisions of these rules are in the competitive classified service, while retaining the right to vote as they please and to express privately their opinions on all political subjects, shall take no active part in political management in the political campaigns."

That is explicit. It is safe to say that most holders of civil service positions are familiar with the rules, but the Civil Service Commission is evidently under the impression that many of them were preparing to take liberties, and the warning has been issued for their own good. It is made plain that disobedience will mean forfeiture of position.

This is as it should be. Under all the circumstances it should not have been necessary to issue such a warning. Persons holding civil service positions know they will not be affected by the results of an election. They knew what the rules were when they took their positions and if they are not willing to live up to the rules, they should resign.

The tax payers of all parties help to pay the salaries of these men and it would be unfair to permit them to work for or against any party. The civil service was established for the good of the public service and its value has been demonstrated. It is the business of the authorities to see that the rules are obeyed, and it is well to have it understood thus early that disobedience will be a matter of serious concern to those guilty of it.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

It's A Race Question Now

(From the Baltimore American)

Couldn't John Bull settle that Irish question with a few yacht races too?

B. Russell Learns Something

(From the New York Times)

Mr. Bertrand Russell has begun giving in the London Nation the impressions which he brought away from Russia after a visit of more than a month. They are pretty sad and disillusionized. Mr. Russell has confirmed the wise remark of George Eliot: "If you would have a hero, you must never make a pilgrimage to his shrine." Lenin was very much of an intellectualized hero to Mr. Russell until he made a pilgrimage to Moscow, talked with Lenin, and took some journeys to the interior of Russia. Having studied the dictatorship of the proletariat, he declares that he is "definitely and strongly opposed to it." He saw it in Moscow turning Communists into men who, amid universal misery, lived like luxurious aristocrats and bore themselves like cruel tyrants. The system is appalling enough as applied in Russia alone, Mr. Russell reluctantly reports; if made universal it would, in his opinion submerge civilization for a thousand years.

To Sir Thomas Lipton

(From the Boston Herald)

All America salutes you. Yachtsmen and land lubbers, adepts in every sport afloat and ashore, weather-beaten experts who have driven racing sloops through the brine with ice rails under and armchair critics who argue while others perform, all render you a genuine tribute of admiration and affection. You are a real sportsman—never censorious, always optimistic; eager to win, generous in defeat; scorning to seek any unfair advantage, quick to accept every official advantage asking only a fair field and no favor, magnanimously paying tribute to your victorious adversary. When from the bridge of your steam yacht you saluted Charles Francis Adams, Robert W. Emmons, and their council and crew, and led the cheers for the Resolute as she crossed the finish line, you did a becoming and manly thing which this country gratefully approves. It may comfort you to know at the end of your twenty years of endeavor that the people of the United States during these days of racing have been of divided mind, hoping to keep the historic trophy, yet loath to see no gallant a challenger for the fourth time beaten. So all Americans salute you, Sir Thomas.

Watching Them Grow

(From the Poland Springs Hill-Top)

I knew a man who died in comparative poverty because he would not cut the wealth of woodland that covered his New Hampshire farm. He always protested that it "wanted to see it grow." To him, cutting those splendid pine trees seemed like killing old friends. They had character and personality. Their life—the life of all nature—seemed a part of his own life.

Who can say the man was wrong? The mystery of growing life in flower and insect, bird and tree, has a never-ending fascination for the serious man or woman. "First the blade, then the ear, then the full corn in the ear," said the Parablist, suggesting all the wonder of life in that simple succession. To watch and to wonder, to feel ourselves brothers or sisters of the majestic pines or the brilliant blossoms, to live in contemplation of the miracle—the perennial transformation of seedlings to mature plants—this is our privilege as resorters in the heart of this beautiful summerland.

We shake our heads at the dreamers, and regard our philosophers as cranks. We are so engrossed in getting and spending that we forget to live. Nature is alive like ourselves. Her life is our life. Not unwisely have the sages of history referred to Earth as the "Mother of us all." Artifice and convention blind us—hold us back from the simple life of Nature, our most precious human heritage. We recognize the sanative and consoling influences of the out-of-doors. In summer we return to the lakes and shores of Maine, the mountains of Vermont or New Hampshire, because we feel that it is good for us to be among them. But few of us go far enough.

We may never learn to find sermons in stones or running brooks. But "he that runs may read" the wonder and the loveliness of life in growing pines, and may in all animal and plant life see a mysterious power which gives his own existence a deeper significance.

Pacemaker and Peacemaker

(From the Los Angeles Times)

Senator Harding is putting the nation into political amiability and he is succeeding mighty well. His efforts to placate the factions in Ohio are the work of a master. Nobody better than Harding knows what factional fights cost the party in his native state.

Time for a New Deed or Gift

(From the New York Evening Post)

Gone are the days when the yachts drove through the brine, ice rails under water, with the spume driven from the bows flying masthead high, sails as flat as a board, sheets—good hempen ones, strained to their utmost, masts, of good solid Oregon pine, all bending to the strain, put everything holding and driving a splendid, wholesome creation of a racehorse speed for the goal. Is the great American pastime to give way to fair weather sailing, where white flannels reign and oilskins are unknown? It is to be hoped not. It is time for another deed of gift, it has been changed many times, with a stipulation that racing machines are barred, and calling for sound and wholesome boats which shall be worth something afterwards, and which shall be models for other ships, as have been cupracers in the past.

Hospitals for Service Men

(From the Boston Transcript)

Under plans being prepared by the War Risk Bureau in Washington, service men now under treatment at various private hospitals throughout the country are to be transferred, at an early date, to hospitals directly under the control of the Government. Announcement of the proposed change has been received with much disfavor both by the incapacitated service men themselves, and their friends and relatives. In most cases these men are in private hospitals located not far from their homes. Their transfer, if carried out according to the plans as they now stand, will, in many cases, involve removal to distant points, where they will be separated from their friends and home folks. Such separation may not be an actual hardship comparable to those faced by these men in actual war. Yet separation from family and friends is never a pleasant thing, nor does it make more endurable the tedious days of hospital life.

Yet the present arrangement by which the men are distributed through a large number of private hospitals has not always proved to be for the best interests of the sick and wounded service men. Concentration in special hospitals, with special equipment, may well lead to a speedier recovery than would be possible under the existing system. But such concentration should so far as possible, be carried out geographically. Men should be sent to the government hospital nearest their homes, and not to one a thousand or more miles away. And these special government hospitals should be made the best in the country, with the most up-to-date equipment that money can buy, with the most capable medical experts in attendance. Anything less than this would be the basest of ingratitude on the part of the nation in whose behalf our wounded veterans suffered the scars which they now bear.

W. G. MERLOON, Receiver.

"Yes, we'll take this suite—all of it."

"And," continued the young gentleman, who with his pretty bride, had been enjoying a personally conducted tour through Margeson Brothers' furniture store, "you may also put down that Queen Anne bedroom suite we looked at up stairs a while ago."

"Queen Anne, John! You don't mean Queen Anne, you mean Chippendale," corrected the young wife. "It's on the third floor, right near the elevator. I've always wanted a Chippendale suite, and that is the most beautiful one I have ever seen."

"Chippendale is right—just a slip of the tongue, my dear," assented the young man quickly. "You know those things a great deal better than I do. About all I know about period furniture is that, from what they have shown us here, it is the most beautiful I ever saw and I have sufficient confidence in Margeson Brothers to know that they wouldn't sell us anything that wasn't right and proper."

FAREWELL RECEPTION TO SERGT. TACCETTA

Former Classmates Greet the Young Soldier at Farragut School.

Sergeant Vincent Taccetta who will shortly leave for St. Louis was the guest of honor at the Farragut school building on Wednesday evening when a large number of guests were present mostly classmates of Taccetta and made the occasion one long to be remembered by those assembled.

Miss Eunice James, Miss Viola Mudgett, Joseph Lanzelli and his son Carlo provided an excellent musical program including that for dancing. The rooms were decorated with patriotic colors and lights making a handsome scene. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

Mr. and Mrs. John Todd and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Garland acted as patrons and patronesses. Sergeant Taccetta is one of the youngest men in the aviation corps of the army and is just as popular today as he was when he attended the Farragut.

Seventy or more were present to extend the young soldier their greetings.

K. OF C. WIN FROM Y. M. C. A. AND TIE WITH P. A. C. FOR SUNSET LEAD

The K. of C. by a lucky win from the Y. M. C. A., on Thursday evening go into a tie for first place with the P. A. C. The Y. M. C. A. had the game apparently won, and with two men on bases and two outs in the end of the fifth, Proulx poled a foul fly to left which McDonald misjudged and lost completely and then he hit safe to center, on the next play McDonald dropped Kincaid's fly to left scoring the winning run. The Y. M. hit Driscoll hard but he had perfect support and by bunching their hits in the fourth they scored two runs. Poor base running shut them out of what looked like good chance to score.

Two men were injured in the game. Murphy playing second for the Y. M. was badly injured when Morrissey ran into him in the second inning and it was feared at first that his leg was broken. He was taken to Dr. Lure's office but it was found to be only badly sprained. In the first inning A. Tobey was injured sliding to second and had to retire.

The game was close and interesting and while there was disappointment over the finish it is part of base ball and the game is never over until the third out.

The K. of C. were up first Hayes walked, McWilliams bunted safe Proulx hit to Meloon who retired Hayes at third Kincaid forced Proulx at second.

A. Tobey singled to center, and stole second, he was injured sliding and retired with J. Tobey taking his place. Murphy flied to Proulx, Carroll hit to Hayes who caught Tobey going to third, Carroll went to second on a balk Meloon singled to right and Carroll was caught going home.

Second Inning—Waite was thrown out by Murphy, Hughes was retired by McCarthy, Morrissey singled to short and on Thomas' single he ran into Murphy handing the ball and was declared out for interference. Murphy was taken from the game with a badly injured leg.

Mercer was tossed out by Driscoll, McDonald flied to Hughes and McCarthy was retired by Hayes.

Third Inning—Driscoll connected for three bases and scored on Hayes's single over third. McWilliams sacrificed him to second Proulx was tossed out by Berry and Kincaid by McNalley who took Murphy's place. One run.

Connors was thrown out by Hughes, Berry struck out, Tobey was hit and McNalley doubled to center and Tobey was caught at the plate by a fine peg by Kincaid.

Fourth Inning—Waite, Hughes and Morrissey all flied to Carroll in center.

The Y. M. took the lead in this frame. Carroll opened with a single through short an error to Hayes. Meloon struck out, Mercer singled to center scoring Carroll McDonald flied to Proulx and McCarthy singled to right scoring Mercer, McCarthy attempted to steal third and was thrown out by Thomas. Two runs.

Fifth Inning—Thomas was retired by McCarthy and Driscoll by McNalley Berry then walked Hayes and Williams. Proulx hit a foul fly to left which McDonald should have made easy work of, but he misjudged it. Proulx then singled to center scoring Hayes, Kincaid hit to McDonald who dropped the ball and McWilliams scored and Waite forced Kincaid at second. Two runs.

Connors flied to Hayes, Berry rolled one to Waite, Tobey singled left and stole second, but McNalley ruined a foul fly to Thomas and the game was over.

73-YEAR OLD MAN HAS WALKED 74,000 MILES

St. John, N. B., July 30.—Henry Stewart, 73, is hiking to his home in San Diego, California, today, having completed this week a tramp to this city which he began last February. Stewart claims to have walked 71,000 miles through America, Europe, Asia and Africa since starting his globe trotting career about ten years ago.

HUSBAND HALTS BURIAL OF WIFE

Suicide at Keene, N. H., Is Identified.

Keene, N. H., July 29.—Interment of the body of the woman who committed suicide at 63 Washington street Monday afternoon, was interrupted yesterday by Marshal Philbrick, who learned the body was that of Mrs. Nellie Coxon, wife of Charles Coxon of Proctorsville, Vt., and not Mrs. John Vance, the name given by the man with whom she was living in this city and whose real name is Fred Oliver Sparks of Fitchburg, Mass.

Yesterday afternoon, while the body was lying at the undertaking parlors, two women who would not divulge their names viewed the remains and afterwards left. They telephoned to Charles Coxon at Proctorsville that his wife was about to be buried, as they recognized the body was that of Mrs. Nellie Coxon. They claimed to have known Mr. and Mrs. Coxon and had worked with them. After the body had been taken to the cemetery City Marshal Philbrick received a call from Proctorsville to stop the burial, which he did. Mr. Coxon came here in an automobile and identified the body as that of his wife.

After leaving the cemetery Marshal Philbrick went in search of the man in the case, Sparks, who was found at 63 Washington street. He was taken to the police station and in the presence of County Solicitor Pickard and Marshal Philbrick admitted the identity of himself and the woman. He claimed that he met Mrs. Coxon soon after he was discharged from the service in Proctorsville and later in Springfield and Bellows Falls, Vt. They came to Keene on July 18, and lived as man and wife at 63 Washington street, where Mrs. Coxon sent the bullet into her head. They passed by the names of Mr. and Mrs. John Vance.

Sparks claimed to the police that he came here from Portland, Me., three weeks ago and that he was a fireman for the Portland Light Company. He stated they were married at the Baptist church in Portland in June, 1917, prior to his entering the service. No trace of the marriage could be found in Portland or that either of them had ever worked there. Sparks claimed that the woman's maiden name was Fitzmorris and gave her birthplace as Maine and her age 33. Sparks claims that he was born in Chester, Vt., 34 years ago.

Mrs. Coxon is 40 years old and the daughter of Edgar King of Bingham, Me., who survives; also her husband and two children. Mrs. Coxon will be buried in Keene today.

"There's something very queer about Photographers,' said Mack;

LEGION HOLD MIDSUMMER DANCING PARTY

The midsummer dance of the Frank E. Bouma Post No. 6 American Legion held on Thursday evening at Freeman's hall was a big success. There was a remarkably large attendance, considering the heat and it was a very enjoyable time.

Marden's orchestra of fifteen pieces played for the concert and dance and the music was excellent and apparently thoroughly enjoyed by the dancing crowd.

The Legion in addition had disposed of a large number of tickets so that they will make something toward their building fund.

The officers of the dance were:

Floor director—Edward A. Weeks, Jr.

Assistant floor directors—Karl M. Pattee, Eugene Daley.

Aides—R. H. Hooper, Clyde Robinson, Daniel Crowley, Omar J. Conican, Dr. C. E. Johnston, Edward J. Neville, Wm. J. Holland, Martin Damon, Maurice Splaine, Charles B. Pearson, Ralph G. McCarthy, James A. McCarthy, John Flanagan, Jeremy R. Waldron, Arthur L. McCaffrey.

Officers—N. T. Wright, Commander. Edward A. Weeks Jr., Vice Commander.

C. Waldo Pickett, Adjutant.

Norman E. Rand, Finance Officer.

Clyde Robinson, Historian.

J. Elwyn Colpitt, Chaplain.

Arthur L. Hersey, Sergt. at Arms.

ALLIGATOR IS SCARCE

New Orleans.—Because everyone seems to want to make a suitcase of him, the alligator is becoming comparatively scarce in Louisiana and protective measures are being framed by the conservation commission.

Statistics compiled by port authorities here show that practically all of the alligator skins exported from the United States go through this port. One concern alone is exporting an average of ten thousand hides each month throughout the year.

Mr. Goodsight Says:

Met a friend of mine the other day, Mr. I. C. Well. He seemed ten years younger for he wore a pair of those New Windsor Spectacles, which are so becoming. He has his eyes examined as regularly as he does his teeth—every year. He believes in keeping young, and believe me, he looked it!

Better see those New Windsor frames now — the neatest and strongest thing in spectacles.

COST SEVENTY MILLION TO CLEAN OUT EAST RIVER

New York—Death by drowning or mutilation—these are chief among the dangers facing the men who are dredging the East River to Long Island Sound that New York may have another deep-sea passage to the Atlantic.

How this undertaking, which will require 15 to 20 years and an expenditure of $55,000,000 to $75,000,000 is being carried on was told here recently by officials of the dredging company, which is doing the work.

"Most of the work must be done during the slack water period at the change of tides and, as there is generally from 500 to 1,000 pounds of dynamite aboard each drill boat the danger of being rammed by passing craft and sent to the bottom is complicated with the possibility of being blown into the air," one official said.

"In Hell Gate we are demolishing Frying Pan Reef which is 480 feet by 360 feet. From eight to ten months will be required to complete this task. A drill boat is being warped across it in parallel paths 30 feet apart, drilling holes into which from 100 to 150 pounds of dynamite is packed and exploded. A dipper dredge, following the drill boat, loads the blasted rock into scows for dumping into holes 75 feet deep or more in the river. This leveling of the river bottom removes the source of eddies, smoothing the current.

"Pot Rock, another reef in Hell Gate, will be destroyed next. Because of treacherous currents for which it is responsible, Pot Rock is known as the wickedest spot in American waters.

"The longest slack water period registered in Hell Gate during the last 40 years was 23 minutes. It is within that slack period that drilling points must be located, charges planted and fired and the position of th plant changed. Divers on this work are generally unable to spend more than 15 minutes under water at a time, so that they work but half an hour in a 24 hour day.

"As a precaution against being rammed by passing craft the Navy Department and Customs House officials have warned operators and owners of vessels to keep a safe distance from dredging plants. For non-compliance with this warning $5 captains were arraigned recently within a period of ten days. Many were suspended for from 10 days to 6 months.

"When the collision signal is sounded on one of the dredging vessels, each of the dynamite crew, wearing life belts, grabs a box of the explosive and stands by to jump overboard.

"The project of dredging the East River to the Sound was first undertaken 40 years ago to provide New York harbor with an entrance which would not require continuous dredging like Ambrose Channel, where five government dredges are constantly removing the infiltrating sands. Hood Rock, in Hell Gate, was then removed and some lesser work accomplished before the appropriation was exhausted."

SHELTER BAY

I am thinking today of Shelter Bay,
And the beautiful Island across the way,
Where our friends will greet us with outstretched hands,
And moor our boats on the shining sands.

They will lead us then to our Savior's feet,
Where the high and the low must surely meet,
We shall hear him say as we cross the sands,
"Welcome, thrice welcome to Shelter Lands."

He will hold us awhile in his tender arms,
And forgive us our sins as He always has done,
Then blesses us and send us away
To that beautiful home called "Shelter Bay."

And our friends will be true
And sincere and grand,
In the wonderful Island
Of Shelter Land.

And money will never enter there,
To mar our happiness anywhere,
And you will be loved for yourself alone,
Across the bay in that beautiful home.

So be kind and good and always true,
Then when the Boatman comes for you,
You will gladly enter his ship and sail away
To that beautiful Island in "Shelter Bay."

So learn to forgive as God forgives you
And watch for the Boatman to signal you
To come to your home in "Shelter Bay,"
Where sorrow and grief can never hold sway,
In that beautiful Island in "Shelter Bay" of [illegible]

BUSY MEETING OF ENSIGN HOVEY POST

Instruct Delegates, Plan for Picnic and Public Performance.

Ensign Emerson Hovey Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, held their regular semi-monthly meeting at Odd Fellows Hall Wednesday night. The delegates to the annual Convention to be held in Washington, D. C., in September, were instructed in the sentiments of the Emerson Hovey Post, 168 Portsmouth, N. H. New business was brought up especially requesting that all members be in attendance at the next regular meeting to be held at the same hall, August 11, 1920, when the disposal of the "Sweets" will take place, and also arrangements to be completed for the coming "Old Time Basket Picnic," of the Post and their friends. This is going to be a sort of get together party of the members and their families and friends, but will not be a public affair. The Emerson Hovey Post has started making arrangements for their coming show to be held in the fall. This promises to be a show that Portsmouth has never seen the same kind before, Mr. Joseph Baird, who helped to make the Allied Minstrel Show a success, has composed the show, and with the help of another member of the Allied Minstrel Show company, Mr. Francis C. Malley as his assistant, the show will be one that Portsmouth will be proud of and enjoy.

As this show will call for a large chorus of male and female voices, Portsmouth will have a chance to see their fair daughters and their escorts in songs and dances. Only Portsmouth talent will appear, and from the number of volunteers received to date, no one will be disappointed in this show.

THE HERALD HEARS

That Senator Moses is going to spend a vacation at Hampton Beach.

That we can shortly expect to hear of new records by the famous blueberry picking battalion of Kittery.

That it is easier to coax a performer him away from it.

That Telesphore Pellier of Exeter, was pardoned by the governor and council at a meeting on Thursday. He was serving a term in Rockingham county jail on a charge of assault. There was no opposition to the pardon by the law officers.

That St. Mary's, Md., Beacon says: Joseph Bailey of Bay View, while on his vacation in Washington, bought an automobile. Joe is very popular with the young ladies and also the young widows. Wonder who will occupy the front seat?

That it's a safe bet the widows will assist Joseph to burn up some of the gasoline in the new Ford.

That it has been some time since prices have been on the level.

That the several hundred Naval Reserves who are to take the Eagle Boats to the Pacific Coast are delighted to make the trip.

That one of the times when a man can claim superiority over woman is when he translates a railroad timetable.

That the signs originated by the Chamber of Commerce for the several highways are ready to be put up.

NO REASON FOR COAL SHORTAGE OR HIGH PRICES

(By Associated Press)

Washington, July 29—Means to avert a winter coal shortage and defeat profiteering in the coal trade will be discussed at a conference in New York on Monday between representatives of the four government departments and the representatives of the coal industries. Acting Attorney General Ames announced this evening. He said that it was hoped to develop a program on which the coal interest would come half way in solving the coal problem. There is no reason for the scarcity of fuel and if there is any it is faulty distribution. No excuse for the present high prices of coal can be offered.

U. S. MAKES PROTEST TO JAPAN

Tokio, July 29 (Associated Press)—The Japanese Government has received a communication from the United States pointing out, among other thing that America is unable to recognize Japan's occupation of the northern half of the island of Saghalin. The Nichi Nichi says of the nature of the protest, however, that the impression exists here that the communication is not really a protest, but rather an exposition of the American viewpoint on occupations of Russian territory, with something of America's attitude towards the territory to be occupied.

It is apparently felt here that any publication of the details of the note should emanate from Washington and not Tokio. Meanwhile it is considered likely that Japan, after mature deliberation, will forward an answer to Washington in an attempt to clarify official opinion there and remove any misunderstanding of Japan's position.

Will Marshall Support Harding

(From the The Topeka State Journal)

Senator Harding in his speech of acceptance favors permitting the vice president to have a voice in the affairs of the nation. This should appeal strongly to the vice presidential vote of the country. It maye be the means of bringing Mr. Marshall into the Republican fold. The rights and interests of vice presidents have been too long neglected.

RECRUITING FOR NEW ARMY

Vienna.—Recruiting for the new army that is to replace the Volkswehr under the terms of the Treaty of St. Germain has ceased, the allowed 30,000 men having been enlisted. It is said that 70 percent of the force are Social Democrats in spite of the attempt made by the opposition to prevent it. This is due to the failure of the peasants to enter service in the provinces, where the conservatives looked for heavy enrollment to offset the industrial centers. Many of the provinces failing to raise their quota, natives of the defaulting provinces residing in the cities were enlisted and sent to their home states.

TEXAS OPENS SCHOOL TO FIGHT HIGH COSTS

Austin, Tex.,—Young women students in the home economics department at the University of Texas are learning how to cut the cost of feeding a family. At the beginning the prime thing is to get a meal, but toward the finish of the course the young woman had also to turn out the finished product cheap.

The university expects its young experts to cut about half off the cost of a lunch by switching deserts and leaving off biscuits. Here is a sample of its before and after college menus:

For 45 cents a plate for four persons: salmon croquettes, mashed potatoes, ice tea, tomato salad, biscuit, strawberries and ice cream.

For 21 cents a plate for four persons (toward the end of the course): creamed tuna fish on toast, French fried potatoes, apple and celery salad, hot tea, lemon pie.

INTERNATIONAL EXCHANGE CHANGED

The new rates as announced are: On Great Britain, $4 for one pound; on the Netherlands, thirty-eight cents for one florin; for Swenden, twenty-four cents for one krona; for Denmark and Norway, twenty cents for one krona; for France, Belgium and Italy, $1 for 10.3 francs.

STUDENTS WHO FAIL AT TECH ARE TAXED

Boston.—Massachusetts Institute of Technology has placed a tax on scholastic failures. Hereafter students who fail or show a deficiency in a study must pay $5 for each shortcoming. The rule has aroused protest from the undergraduates, who are supported by some members of the faculty.

Leonard M. Passano, professor of mathematics, taking the side of the students, wrote a formal communication to the executive committee in which he argued that professor and student are jointly involved in such failures. He suggested that instructors be fined with students for each failure in their classes, if the rule is to hold.

109 MILLION BUSHEL OF WHEAT LEFT

Washington, July 28—Wheat from last year's crop carried over into 1920 totalled 190,313,000 bushels on July 1 compared with 48,561,000 of the 1919 crop on hand the corresponding day last year said an announcement today by the department of agriculture.

Stocks of farms, in country mills and elevators and in points of large accumulations all showed an increase over 1919 totals. This year farmers held 47,755,000 bushels, against 19,261,000 mushels in 1919, the figure perhaps reflecting disturbed transportation conditions during the past year. # ENGLAND REPAYS, READS THE HEADLINE

A popular appeal by display advertisements in the press is being made by the British Government to induce the British people to help pay off England's share of the Anglo-French loan by purchasing Savings Certificates. "Britain Repays," is the title on one of these advertisements just received by the Foreign Information Service.

"In 1915," says this advertisement, "we borrowed jointly with France 100 million pounds in the United States. The loan falls due October next. It has been decided that the whole of the money raised during the next three months by the sale of Savings Certificates shall be devoted to paying off this country's share of the loan."

"The repayment of this debt will assist to rectify the present adverse American exchange. It will help to reduce prices of all the essential commodities which we import from the U. S. A. It will be a striking proof to the world of Britain's power of recovery after the war. By paying the loan in this way the country will owe this money to you and your fellow citizens. Interest on it will go to you instead of to America. In the words of the Prime Minister, "Let us keep the debt in the family."

"This method of bringing a debt home was mentioned as a "happy byepath" by the Chancellor of the Exchequer last April in the House of Commons.

"The remarkable success o fthe war savings certificate movement in England during the war and since has been summarized in a study of "English Public Finance" recently published by the Bankers Trust Company, as follows:

"The War Savings Clubs in England were one of the finest achievements of British war finance. The general idea was adopted in our own country after we came into the war in the form of our W. S. S. with which we are all familiar. In England there were many group purchasers, neighborhood groups, servant groups, tradesmen groups and the like. Sometimes they pooled their purchases and offered prizes of various kinds. Then when a permanent war loan came out these groups used their organizations to promote the sales of bonds among their members.

"The National War Savings Committee was inaugurated by the British Treasury in February, 1916. War Savings Certificates were immediately issued, and the National Committee proceeded to set up 'War Savings Associations.' Decentralization being found essential to the scheme, Local Savings Committees were organized throughout Great Britain, a democratic basis therefore being imparted to the scheme from the outset.

"By the date of the armistice in November, 1918, there were some eighteen hundred local committees, 14,000 official agents and branches and 40,000 associations numbering not less than five million members. More than a quarter of a billion War Savings Certificates had been sold, and the sum of nearly 201 million pounds (about 977 million dollars) had been invested in the certificates. The average number of certificates sold monthly had been 9 million while the withdrawals were approximately only ten per cent of the total issue. The amount outstanding on January 1, 1920, was 267 million pounds (about 1,298 million dollars).

"Sir Robert Kindersley, director of the Bank of England, to whom, as Chairman of the National Savings Committee, so much of the success of the whole movement is due, has said that the army of voluntary workers for national savings enlisted by the Government has captured the imagination of the great mass of the people. He has declared that this movement is an expression of the innate 'spirit of adventure' which has made the British Empire what it is today and which promised to make the movement as big a success in peace as in war time; and has emphasized the fact that, out of nearly 400 million War Savings Certificates sold since the inauguration of the movement, 121 million had been disposed of since the armistice.

"As Sir Robert Kindersley summed it up:

"First of all we had the impetus of the war, the desire on the part of everybody to try and help to win the war—that was the first advantage that we had. But we should have absolutely failed in this movement if we had simply set out as a pure collecting agency of money for the State. We had to have behind us a gospel. In fine, it was from the outset a gigantic effort in unselfishness on the part of an entire community, which has seldom if ever been equalled in the history of humankind."

A RARE PORTRAIT OF WASHINGTON.

Deposited With New York Historical Society by Tarrant Putnam

A rare and comparatively unknown portrait of George Washington, painted at Philadelphia in 1791 by Archibald Robertson, a leading portrait painter of his day, has been deposited with the New York Historical Society, 170 Central Park West, by Tarrant Putnam, a member of the society and a lineal descendent of the artist.

The portrait is painted in oils on a marble slab nine by twelve inches, and the colors are as bright today as though they had been applied yesterday. The portrait is of three-quarters length and shows Washington as a civilian clad in a pale brownish coat with broad white ruffles down the front. It is in a fine state of preservation and gives one an excellent idea of Washington as he looked in private life a year before his death. The artist had written that when the portrait was painted Washington did not wear his false teeth. On the blackboard filling is written in the artist's hand:

"79 Liberty Street. George Washington, first President of the United States. Originally painted by Archibald Robertson, from life, December, 1791, Philadelphia."

The portrait remained in the artist's possession until his death, Dec. 6, 1835, when it passed to his wife. It remained in her possession until her death on April 5, 1865. During his lifetime the portrait hung in his residence in Amity street. Thereafter Mrs. Robertson resided with her son, Judge Anthony L. Robertson, in Thirty-second street, west of Sixth Avenue. At her death, upon the distribution of her effects, it became the property of her son, the Judge, who upon the death of his mother removed to his residence in Twenty-second Street, just west of Fifth Avenue, where the portrait remained until his death Dec. 18, 1868. Upon the settlement of his estate his curios, miniatures and personal effects were distributed by lot among his next of kin. The portrait was bequeathed to Mr. Putnam by a relative.

How He Came to Paint It

How Archibald Robertson came to paint this and other portraits of Washington and his family, is not without interest. His ancestry is known as far back as the thirteenth century, and the members of his family were known for their artistic and intellectual accomplishments. He was educated at King's College, where he early manifested a predilection for the fine arts.

In 1789 he went to London to study at the Royal Academy. Here he met Sir Joshua Reynolds and became his pupil and intimate friend. He painted, it is believed, the only miniature of Sir Joshua which is in existence.

The Earl of Buchan, a powerful nobleman, requested an introduction to the artist. The Earl was a great admirer of Washington and commissioned the artist to paint Washington's portrait and presented to him the Wallace box as a token of his high esteem. This box, in which was inclosed a letter from the Earl introducing Robertson to Washington, was four inches long, three broad and two deep, and one-eighth of an inch thick. It was made of six pieces of the heart of an oak tree which sheltered Wallace after a battle.

The artist's meeting with Washington proved one of the great events of his life. He was installed as a guest in the Executive Mansion, and spent three weeks at Mount Vernon. He painted from life two celebrated miniatures of General Washington and Mrs. Washington, the portrait which the Earl had commissioned him to paint, and the likeness of the great man on marble. While he was a guest of Washington the latter did everything to make his visit pleasant. He put aside much of his natural reserve and dignity toward strangers, told amusing anecdotes, and laughed and joked. He held a family dinner party which pleased the artist greatly.

Besides the Washington portrait, Mr. Putnam has deposited with the society miniatures of Mr. and Mrs. William Robertson, parents of Archibald Robertson, painted by Andrew Robertson; miniatures of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Robertson, painted by Archibald Robertson, and an autograph letter of Archibald Robertson transmitting a portrait of Washington to the Earl of Buchan. This letter, dated Nov. 8, 1793, is as follows:

Letter to the Earl of Buchan

"My Lord:

"With pleasure I take the opportunity which now offers to transmit to your Lordship the portrait of the President, the Illustrious Hero of America, the brave Washington, Tobias Lear Esq., his secretary, a gentleman of the most amiable and respectable characteristics, is the person who now favors me in transmitting this with the portrait to your Lordship who I hope will arrive safe in Europe. The short notice I have had of his intended voyage has prevented me having it in my power to prepare some other matters for your Lordship, but I shall embrace the first opportunity as Mr. Lear will have the opportunity of seeing your Lordship to present matters of importance with which he is better acquainted.

"As I consider the picture as the best likeness of General Washington I have attempted, I should be proud to be informed of your Lordship's opinion of it, and whether you can trace anything of the sublime character of the original in this humble copy. I have endeavored not only to convey the form of the features, but the characteristic look of the countenance and the expression of the eye with the particular character of each as well as the feat ensemble of his countenance, which possesses an open, benign look. At the same time the dignity of his manners commands the highest respect, but words are wanting to convey to you the impression of a man whose person and character are the objects of so high veneration and esteem.

"I remain, my Lord, most respectfully

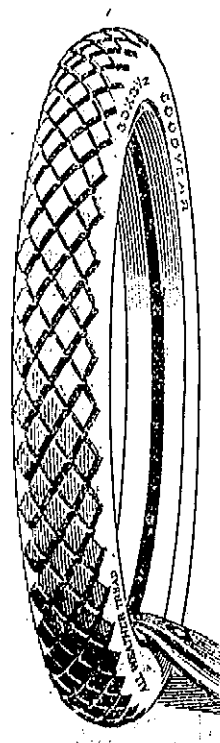

"ARCHIBALD ROBERTSON.

"89 William St., New York, Nov. 8, 1793."

In 1824 President Trumbull of the Columbian Museum said in appreciation of the artist:

"If we would behold the countenance of Washington in his best days we must seek it in Houdon's bust; if we desire to know him when he began to wane Robertson's portrait is the best; only he and Stewart painted him looking at the spectator."

MEXICO HAS OFFICIAL BUREAU OF INFORMATION

Mexico City, July 28.Creation here of an official bureau of information for the foreign press was announced, within a fortnight, by the disappearance from the cable office in Mexico City of the censors who, the constitution of 1917 to the contrary, had revised all messages, press messages in particular, for the last 10 years.

Bringing the censorship to the attention of President de la Huerta has been the most notable feat thus far performed by the Information Bureau. All foreign correspondents have been listed and identification cards (photographs attached) issued to them.

Operated through the Department of the Interior, over which Manuel Aguirre Berlanga presided, and with Mario Mendez, general manager of the national telegraph lines, as chief censor, the censors were a factor not to be disregarded up until May 7, when the Carranza government evacuated the capital. During the war, charges of pro-Germanism against Berlanga and Mendez often were linked with the intimations of the value of the censorship to the Germans in Mexico.

Not only were allied business interests resentful and powerless, but foreign correspondents faced a greater inconvenience, even danger. Even though the censor halted transmission of news stories judged "inconvenient" for the Carranza government, the mere filing of such a story was sufficient ground for declaring the correspondent a "pernicious foreigner."

When President de la Huerta met all the "little ons" as Mexican officialdom terms journalists, of the foreign press at a luncheon on June 12, he was asked about the censorship and declared he did not know it existed. Immediately he directed Colonel Benito Ramirez, his chief of staff, to order its discontinuance.

CHINA WILL ESTABLISH AIR MAIL ROUTES

Shanghai.—General Ting Kian, Director of the Department of Aeronautics of the Chinese government, has outlined a big program of development in aeronautics for China.

"Within the next year," he asserted, "air mail routes will be established between Shanghai and Peking and between Peking and Urga and the machines that will supply this service will carry both freight and passengers."

The government of China last year contracted for the purchase of 100 airplanes from a British concern and 50 of these have been received. Others will be delivered through the summer. General Ting said a large number of Chinese fliers are being trained at Peking and other Chinese airmen who have received training abroad will enter the service.

COL. STORRS IS GOVERNOR OF JERUSALEM

Jerusalem.—The office of governor of Jerusalem once occupied by Pontius Pilate, is now held by Colonel Ronald Storrs, a graduate of Cambridge University and son of the Dean of Rochester College, Eng.

His task is one to test the administrative ability of any man. Jerusalem is a city of disunions, where, whatever may come of the future for the moment Zionists and Arabs are passionately divided and to steer a just path between them and induce them to join him on that path is thankless work.

It is to that task, however, that he chiefly devotes himself. Twice a week he has meetings of his favorite pro-Jerusalem society, where French, Italians, British, Americans, rabbis, Zionists, leaders, commercial men of standing and others who are in any way prominent in the life of the city are brought together and in the course of debate led to see that they have in common a single citizenship. His motto as governor is "unify and be friends."

INSPECTION OF HIGHWAY MADE

An official inspection of the new Theodore Roosevelt International Highway in its course through New Hampshire was made recently by the state chairman, John E. Hutchins of North Stratford, together with the secretary of the state organization, Frank A. French of Manchester, and prominent hotel men along the route. Also in the party were Frank French, artist of Manchester, and Ralph Hutchins of North Stratford.

The start was made from the western reach of the Roosevelt Highway where it enters New Hampshire at Waterford. Mr. French and his father drove up to Littleton, and Mr. Hutchins and his son drove down from North Stratford to meet the others there.

The first stop was in Littleton. At Bethlehem, eGorge H. Turner and Carl Abbott, both hotel men of large vision, were keenly alive to the great possibilities by way of publicity and future business for New Hampshire. New Hampshire is but one of 12 states through which the Roosevelt Memorial Highway runs between Portland, Oregon, and Portland, Maine, but it may well be said that no other state possesses so many wonderful attractions or in so small a mileage as does New Hampshire, "the Switzerland of America."

At the Twin Mountain house, Harold B. Barron was called upon, and at Fabyans Mrs. Oscar Barron was enthusiastic regarding the future development of this admirable type of memorial to Theodore Roosevelt. It is an interesting fact that Oscar Barron was the man in New Hampshire who was responsible for the present fine stretch of highway across the state at this point. Had it not been for his successful fight in the legislature some years ago against much opposition for a suitable quality of roadway through the White mountains, it is quite possible that the Roosevelt highway might have passed over into the state of Maine without giving to the people of the country a chance to see the marvelously beautiful mountain scenery of New Hampshire.

At the Crawford house and the Mount Washington was the same spirit of co-operation by those men who know the wants of tourists best. All expressed the belief that this new highway would become the most popular in all America.

William A. Barron was most enthusiastic, and after talking with Mr. Hutching and his party for nearly two hours, suggesting plans for development along advertising lines, insisted that all stay for lunch at the Crawford house as his guests.

From Crawford's the run down the famous notch was made and the official markers—a wide red band between two narrow white bands with the letters "T. R." on the red—were carefully noted wherever they appeared. Tourists are requested to note, too, that an "X" appears just above the Roosevelt marker whenever a dangerous curve or narrow bridge or railway crossing is approached. This is a simple but remarkably effective caution signal for those who are watching the road for the Roosevelt tour all across the continent.

At North Conway, Harry Randall, proprietor of the Randall House and one or two others in that vicinity, proved to be no less enthusiastic than the rest of those seen. Already many tourists are wondering what the "T. R." markers on the poles stand for. Some at first seem to think it means "turn right." Then as they keep coming this is discredited. Upon learning that it all refers to a very new cross-continent memorial to Theodore Roosevelt, through a route which includes America's most lavish touch of nature's beauty with White Mountains in the East, Rockies in the West and the Great Lakes between and constituting "America's Summer Playground," everyone is alive to its possibilities and eager to ride out a tour on it and to inform others.

An advisory committee has been formed which will include the following and probably a few others yet to be appointed: Henry Richardson of Littleton; George H. Turner and Carl Abbott, of Bethlehem; Harold Barron of Twin Mountain; William A. Barron of Crawford's and Fabyan's; Harry Randall and H. S. Mudgett, of North Conway; and Howard, of Jefferson. All of these men appreciate the need of proper publicity for New Hampshire and recognize in this highway an opportunity to extend a welcome to thousands of tourists who never thought definitely of coming to the territory for their summer visit. They may be depended upon to see that the Roosevelt highway in New Hampshire is known from coast to coast.

A booklet with an especially attractive cover design in colors and containing both the state detailed map and sectional maps showing the entire course of the highway are now in process so as to be handed out before the season is over and with the particular purpose of allowing this season's tourists to show them to friends who never saw the Old Man of the Mountains or the cog-wheel railways on Mount Washington and the other wonders.

Undoubtedly a motion picture reel will be made of the New Hampshire section. This would be shown to millions of theatre goers during the home season as a possible feast in reality to come when visiting the Granite State. It is expected that each state will have a similar reel of film for general distribution so that all parts of the United States will become thoroughly familiar with the highway.

Business in the mountains is reported good and bookings for August are heaviest known. According to George H. Turner, no season has looked so satisfactory at this period and a longer touring season than usual is expected.

The inspection party returned to Littleton in the afternoon and from there to their homes. It is desired to have a good many individuals in the state who are interested in the development of the Roosevelt highway as members of the association. Popular membership are two dollars and anyone wishing to lend their effort in this way will be welcome and a card of membership furnished upon receipt of the amount by the secretary, Frank A. French, Box 537, Manchester. "A thousand members in 1920," is the slogan.

REORGANIZE UNITTED STATES MILITARY ESTABLISHMENT

Washington.—America's military establishment is being practically revolutionized under the terms of the new army reorganization bill which became effective July 1. Army officers say the work will not be completed for some months because of the broad scope of the measure passed at the last session of Congress to place the land forces on a permanent peace basis.

While the regular army will contain only 295,000 officers and men scattered over the country and the insular possessions, it will be so arranged in conjunction with the National Guard and the Reserve that rapid expansion of the nation's fighting forces in time of emergency will be possible.

The National Guard will have about 440,000 officers and men, but the strength of the reserve has not yet been worked out and will depend largely on the enlistment of eligibles. The regular army reserve as it formerly existed, composed of former enlisted men furloughed to the reserve to complete their enlistment period ceased to exist as such on July 1. In its place there is established the enlisted reserve corps and the officers of the reserve corps. The members of the former, except veterans of the world war, are required to enlist for three years. Veterans of the world war may enlist for only one year.

The officers reserve corps is composed of officers who held temporary or reserve commissions during the war emergency and graduates of the student officers training school.

To accomplish the reorganization of the National Guard and the initial organization of the reserve, the army bill provides for a general committee to be composed of regular army general staff officers and an equal number of reserve or national guard officers. In addition, 52 other committees, representing each state and territory will arrange the National Guard organization in each state and territory. Some of these committees have not yet been appointed by the governors and consequently this work has not yet been put under way.

While no full plan of organization has been made public, a tentative plan to be placed before the committees would divide the country into nine districts with an army corps in each. This corps would consist of one regular, one guard and two reserve divisions, so organized that in an emergency the two reserve divisions, which theoretically would be the only ones much below war strength, could be filled up with selective service men. A full quota of officers drawn from the officers' reserve corps would be available for these divisions at all times.

The new regular army strength provides for approximately 17,000 commissioned officers. To provide this number about 7,000 reserve and temporthy officers have been kept on duty and it is the plan to reach the full officer strength by commissioning about 7,000 such officers and enlisted men in the permanent army. Officers and men to be so commissioned will be selected by a board, known as the Pershing board, headed by General Pershing and including six other officers.

The bill broadens the scope of the reserve officers training corps at the various educational institutions over the country, provides instructors and material for the schools and also authorizes summer camps to last six weeks for advanced training of the student officers. Graduates of the training corps may be commissioned in the organized reserve.

The reorganization measure further provides that the head of the militia bureau of the War Department, which under the reorganization has jurisdiction over the national guard and reserve affairs, shall be a National Guard officer not below the rank of major who will receive the pay and allowances and have the rank while on duty of a major general in the army.

The offices of second and third assistant secretaries of war are abolished by the measure and their duties absorbed by the assistant secretary of war, who will be charged with the procurement of all military supplies and plans for the mobilization of material and industrial establishments needed in time of war.

SITUATION IN THE BUILDING INDUSTRY

The United States, like every other former belligerent, is far behind in its building operations. Although the supply of basic raw materials in this country is sufficient to support the most ambitious building program here, the high cost of both labor and materials and the inadequacy of transportation facilities prevent the use of a large part of these materials. This condition is the most serious factor in retarding the work of meeting the acute demand for homes and industrial structures throughout the country.

In the absence of complete statistics of building for the entire country, the figures reported by the United States Geological Survey for about 150 cities in all sections of the country may be regardede as fairly representative data. Its statistics do not include construction for military purposes, for which no permit was required. Such construction can only in part serve non-military purposes.

Since the Geological Survey statistics do not show the number of new houses, but only the value of the permits, it is proper to make allowance for changes in prices in estimating the accumulated shortage of housing as is evidenced by the permits.

The following table is based upon the Geological Survey statistics and purports to show the accumulated deficit in building construction for the years 1917 to 1919 inclusive, allowances being made for changes in prices as affecting building costs.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1913 | $869,057,250 | 100 | 100 | 0 |
| 1914 | 785,625,746 | 100 | | |
| 1915 | 780,735,860 | 100 | | |
| 1916 | 1,024,211,675 | 117 | | |
| 1917 | 687,416,605 | 139 | 60 | 40 |
| 1918 | 430,014,366 | 169 | 31 | 69 |
| 1919 | 1,281,000,000 | 200 | 75 | 25 |

Accumulated deficit .....134

The table shows a shortage of 1 1-2 times a normal year's building.

Other estimates of the housing shortage, in terms of the number of houses have been made. The United States Forest Service estimates that the country lacks 450,000 houses. Other estimates range as high as 800,000 and even 1,000,000 houses. The wide variation in size and cost of houses makes it difficult to define any standard house as a unit of measurement. The value of the permits affords a more satisfactory measurement of the building shortage.

Adequacy of Raw Materials

As already indicated, the raw materials for building—timber, clay, cement, iron, etc.,—are available in abundance. Unlike the yield of agricultural products, the supply of these materials may promptly be enlarged whenever demand calls for it. It remains to consider whether the labor and plant capacity are sufficient to make these materials immediately available.

In the lumber industry it is estimated that there is an excess plant capacity of 50 percent with a like excess capacity in the brick, stone and cement industries, while the steel mills could easily expand their output of structural steel through a curtailment of other products.

Although there is not an unlimited amount of labor for building operations, the unskilled workers, and even the number of skilled workers, could be greatly increased if the demand for buildings should call for them.

Reasons for Tardiness in Building

While the general tardiness of building operations is in large part due to hesitation to undertake new building at current costs and to the difficulties of financing such undertakings, it may be questioned whether such hesitation is chiefly responsible for the marked decline in May, compared with April of this year. It appears that the transportation tangle is the primary source of the decline. There is no general expectation that by postponing new building for a few months marked savings may be realized through future declines in prices. Even should the long-desired definite recession in prices develop there is much ground for the belief that for some time yet building costs will show at best but slight decline apart from temporary fluctuations. It is believed by many that there will be still further advances in building costs generally. As for the influence of credit stringency upon building operations, other lines of business enterprises are also affected, most of which show no such marked decline in activity as does the building industry.

In some localities there is a general dearth of available building materials. In some localities one or another material may be found in sufficient quantities for the immediate needs of the building in hand, but other equally essential materials are lacking and, in consequence, operations are as effectively suspended as if all the supplies were lacking. Brick, for example, is available where there is no cement. On the other hand, certain lumber mills are idle because they are not able to move their product.

It seems that the urgency of the need for new building would warrant a system of freight priorities which would serve to increase activity in this essential industry. The problem of priorities, is, of course, a very complex one; with so many essential businesses in need of every assistance, not one of them can be favored directly by freight preference or indirectly by embargoes without, at the same time, handicapping some other enterprise. But if any claim for special treatment is warranted under the present condition, apparently building materials are well toward the head of the list of commodities for which such claims may rightly be made.

THE number of conveniently located Socony gasoline stations is always increasing. All over historic New England and New York State, Socony service has grown with every community.

The Socony standard of service has always been to furnish Socony products wherever the need for them—however small—was manifested.

As a result, the scope of this service has been constantly broadened. The public requires motor fuel and oils of Socony quality. Motorists demand them because they are uniformly clean and efficient—none better are produced today.

Those most interested in gasoline economy—large users—have found that the regular use of one standard motor fuel of uniform quality gives the greatest satisfaction over long periods. There is less carbonization, a permanent carburetor adjustment is possible as well as more accurate checking of mileage.

You can fill up regularly with Socony gasoline almost anywhere from Eastport, Maine, to Lockport, New York, and from Long Island to the Canadian border. Begin today!

PETTIBONE GUILTY OF MURDER OF SECOND DEGREE

Manchester Undertaker Found Guilty by Jury After a Day's Deliberation

(By Associated Press)

Manchester, Vt. July 29—"Guilty of murder in the second degree" was the verdict returned by the jury which deliberated for 23 hours the fate of Byron M. Pettibone on trial for the murder of his wife Eva.

The announcement of the verdict came after several requests by the jury for new instructions. The first today came at 11 o'clock, when Foreman Beebe reported the jurors were not yet in agreement.

The foreman said the jurors wished to be instructed regarding second degree murder and manslaughter. Judge Wilson thereupon read his definitions, adding suggestions as to how the law could be applied to the evidence in the trial. The men began deliberations at 7 o'clock last night. They requested instructions at 10.14 and were advised by Judge Wilson to retire for the night.

Later a stay of execution was granted for thirty days to give attorneys for Pettibone opportunity to present a bill of exception. Pettibone was taken to the Bennington jail pending the appeal.

BOSTON BUSINESS MAN THE "UNITARIAN COURIER" IN RELIGIOUS, EDUCATIONAL AND FINANCIAL CAMPAIGN

Boston, Mass, July 29.—Time was when a courier was selected because of his fleetness of foot. But modern inventions have set a faster pace than did the ancient Greek in commemoration of whose exploits the present Marathon race takes its name. The couriers of today rely upon the printed word and the spoken word. They are selected because of the speed with which they assimilate progressive ideas and relay them to others. Of such as these is Ernest G.Adams, Boston business man, a man with a heritage and a message.

Ernest G. Adams says it "makes him sick" when people tell him he ought to be a preacher. Nevertheless he has been selected by 8,000 laymen of his church as "The Unitarian Courier." And he has accepted, because he believes that religion and patriotism are synonymous, a belief inculcated and developed by religious and patriotic Yankee parents in the distant Sandwich Islands, where their children were born and raised.

Now Mr. Adams has children of his own. He is trying to bring them up according to an improved version of that good old-fashioned formula: "Bring your children up in the way they should go." But he adds five words, five words that make all the difference in the world: "And go that way yourselves!" And he is asking himself the question that is emphasized in a recent "Statement to the Country by the Unitarian Laymen's League" which runs:

"Are we doing for the rising generation what our parents, in their time, did for us when we were the rising generation?"

It is because 8000 Unitarian laymen have their doubts that they have drafted the vice president of their league to be their "courier," not because he is an officer in the league but because he has succeeded in convincing them that true religion is the highest expression of patriotism.

"There has been something in the atmosphere lately," says Mr. Adams, "of not caring for principles. There has been a sordid fallaneae in the way people have sought money and have exploited the government. Many men use public office for their own wealth gain. Almost every one seems to be out to make a killing, with no real thought of what it will all lead to. There is little thought in what men do today, of what the effect will be on future generations. They appear to be absolutely set upon what they can get away with here, and what succeeding generations will do does not bother them.

"I have been wondering and studying and have come to the conclusion that we are lacking a sense of responsibility and loyalty to God. I believe, just as firmly as I believe anything, that this government of ours is the fruition of a tremendous plan that has been running for thousands of years, upon the fundamental principle that opportunity shall be given to all. I believe that every one of us has got a piece of work, not only here but somewhere else. I believe firmly that we shall find a real work when we leave this earth.

"I believe that we have a future, that we are here as in a training camp, and it is our job to conceive that we are partners in a big plan. We are thinking beings with the power to create and mould things. We have a tremendous job in front of us to make the plan work. To do so we must have a sense of loyalty and responsibility to the Being who is putting it through.

"We Unitarians worship the living God, whom we regard as our Father and our Friend.

"We do not believe that He is a fearsome God, one to be placated, but that He has every good quality that we strive for in ourselves: Wonderful enthusiasm, wonderful justice, love and mercy. God is a Father who plays no favorites. When it appears that He shows favoritism it is the result of our own misdeeds, in that we or our ancestors have not followed the rules that He has laid down for us.

"Cannot we conceive that God is anxious for our cooperation? I believe that we must get the feeling that God is calling for our help. We must get the sense that we are all team players. On any team that is worth its salt not only will each individual player do his best to develop his own play but he will work just as hard to encourage and help his teammates to develop their play to its utmost capacity.

"Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University, defined religion as loyalty and responsibility to God. Now I don't care how a man comes to a true sense of loyalty and responsibility to God as long as he surely comes. If a man has this spirit every day in the week he has religion. I believe Christ's teachings are absolutely the way of life.

"'Love the Lord thy God.'

"'Love thy neighbor as thyself.'

"And yet some say that Unitarians are not Christians!"

As "The Unitarian Courier" Mr. Adams will devote very little time to his own personal business during the next few months. His job is to spread among Unitarians everywhere the faith that is in him and in the 8000 laymen whom he represents. These laymen have taken the initiative in the creation of a great religious, educational and financial program.

They seek to revive the religious enthusiasm of the pioneer Unitarians and to unify in a powerful working force those of the present day who follow the trail blazed by those pioneers. And they aim to spread among the 60,000,000 or more unchurched Americans a knowledge of Unitarian principles.

William H. Taft is honorary chairman of the committee in charge of the Unitarian Campaign.

ENGLAND EULOGIZES LINCOLN

London, July 29—The unveiling of the Saint Gaudens statue of Abraham Lincoln, in Canning Square yesterday, is described at great length in this morning's newspapers, which devote their most conspicuous columns to the event and print pictures of the ceremonies.

Lincoln's title to preeminence for his political achievements and moral example are subject to editorials in very paper, his public life being recalled with warm eulogy. The wish is evoked that the present conditions facing the British Parliament may influence public men here to emulate Lincoln's high character and that to them may be vouchsafed some of his vision and steadfastness.

The Government gave a dinner in honor of Elihu Root, former American Secretary of State, at Lancaster House last night. Mr. Root spoke at the unveiling of the statue. Lord Curzon, Secretary of Foreign Affairs, presided at the dinner and gave a toast to the King and the President. There were no speeches. The function was purely social. The guests included Ambassador Davis, Lord Reading, Viscount Bryce, the Lord Mayor of London, the Home Secretary Edward Short, the Chief Secretary for Ireland, Sir Hamar Greenwood, Sir Alfred Mond, Lord Desborough, Baron Wearsdale and Baron Riddell.

POPULAR FUND FOR CAMPAIGN

(By Associated Press)

Marion, O., July 29—Subjects ranging from the political outlook in Ohio to internal trouble of China, were discussed by Senator Harding in one of his busiest days today. He held a long conference with Fred B. Upham the committee treasurer, who said that the campaign is going to be financed by a truly popular fund. Arizona will do her share as well as New York and Pennsylvania.

Senator Harding discussed the Ohio situation with George H. Clarke, state republican chairman, who said that there was no doubt of a republican success in Ohio. It is naturally a republican state and it will this fall exceed its usual plurality.
